Screen 12
Will only 1 Kaimahi escort the Tamariki?

Typically 2 Kaimahi and a driver will escort the Tamariki to ensure a safe and supportive environment. Multiple staff help manage risks and provide better care. This practice aligns with safety and support guidelines.

Are debriefs optional after an escort?

Debriefs are required after each escort to review the experience. This step is important for learning, accountability, and continuous improvement. Regular debriefs help address any issues and support Kaimahi well-being.

Information About Escorting

Oranga Tamariki's escort policy ensures safe, supportive transport for tamariki (children) and rangatahi (youth). Escorts can be planned or unscheduled, allowing for flexibility in urgent situations. Unscheduled escorts are critical for handling emergencies, allowing staff to act swiftly in response to sudden needs, whether due to changes in the child's circumstances or other urgent issues. The overarching aim is always the well-being of the young person being escorted, prioritizing their safety and comfort.

The flexibility of this policy enables Oranga Tamariki to respond quickly to various situations, especially when children need immediate assistance. The ability to conduct unscheduled escorts also ensures that timely interventions can be made, ensuring that tamariki are cared for in critical times. Whether the escort is planned or not, the same level of care and safety protocols is applied to all situations.

While unscheduled escorts are an important part of the process, the policy

Legal Rights Of Parents

Oranga Tamariki ensures that parents are fully informed about the details of any escort involving their child. Parents are notified of the purpose, destination, and timing of the escort, ensuring transparency and fostering trust between the family and Oranga Tamariki. This level of communication allows parents to stay actively involved in decisions regarding their child's care during transport, ensuring that they are not left in the dark about important aspects of their child's welfare.

By keeping parents informed, Oranga Tamariki maintains a supportive relationship with the family. This transparency helps to ease any concerns parents may have, providing them with the information they need to feel reassured about their child's well-being. Regular updates ensure that parents remain in the loop, regardless of whether the escort is scheduled or urgent, promoting a sense of collaboration and trust.

Parents also have the right to raise any concerns or ask questions about the escort
